Special thanks to the many practitioners and professors whose thoughtful contributions and ideas helped make the Twelfth Edition of the JLM possible. They include but are not limited to John Boston, Philip Genty, Brett Dignam, and Colleen Shanahan.

Putting together a resource like A Jailhouse Lawyer's Manual (JLM) requires the hard work and dedication of several students, professors, practitioners, and volunteers. We would like to thank everyone who contributed to this publication, and particularly all of the Articles Editors who spent so much of their time ensuring that we published the most accurate and readable JLM yet. Additionally, we are grateful to the students who served as staff editors on the JLM since 2017, all of whom worked on this edition of the manual. We are particularly appreciative of our current staff editors (2020–2021) and those from last school year (2019–2020), whose hard work on the 12th Edition of the JLM—during difficult circumstances—was invaluable. Additional thanks go to fellow law students and friends who volunteered their sharp eyes and time to improving the JLM.

Distribution of the JLM would not be possible without our Managing Directors and Undergraduate Fellows. The COVID-19 pandemic has made distributing the JLM especially challenging. Despite the difficulties, the Managing Directors have made huge improvements to our distribution system that we hope will make it easier for incarcerated people to access our publications going forward.

All of the students who work on the JLM do so in addition to their schoolwork and extracurricular activities. That work has been particularly challenging in 2020. The grace, patience, and diligence of the students who worked on the 12th Edition is greatly appreciated.

Special thanks also to those who sent artwork to the JLM. The cover art for this edition was contributed by Joseph Pippen. The title page art is by Scott Cook.

Finally, we would like to thank all the jailhouse lawyers who read the JLM. Your dedication to fighting for justice for people in prison is why we write our publications. Thank you.
